

THE OLD WILLOW ROCKER

(Composed by Mrs. R. D. Stokes.)
There's an old willow rocker on our front porch;
It stays there night and day.
'Tis the resting place of a dear old man
Who is now getting aged and gray.
That old willow rocker is sacred to me;
It was given me years ago
By one I loved as my own life,
And that dear one's name was Joe.
He gave it to me as a Christmas gift,
After we were wedded in June;
How little I thought I must give him up!
Yes, give him up so soon.
He left me to care for his dear little ones,
For of children he had seven;
He trusted me to care for them
And guide their steps to heaven.
Six of those children were his but not mine—
Dear Maggie, their mother was dead,
And as their father and I had known each other for years,
He wished me for a mother instead.
Many times have I, when weary and sad,
And tired from the cares of the day,
Sat and listened to God's precious word,
And knelt by that chair to pray.
And there as I knelt before the great God,
As I did in prayer each night,
I would ask Him to bless those dear little ones,
And help us all to live right.
In that chair I have rocked my dear little babe,
And sang to it songs of love;
How early in life it was taken away—
It is now with the angels above.
No wonder I prize that old willow chair,
Although it is worn and broken,
For it brings to my mind bygone happy days,
And some of which are too sad to be spoken.
Yes, that old willow chair is aged and worn,
Some, perhaps, would have thrown it away;
But to me it is worth as much as ever before—
I value it more each day.
That old willow chair is no beauty, of course,
But it was when it was given to me;
And how comfortable, too, to sit in to rest,
When I had finished my work after tea.
We have padded and cushioned that old willow chair,
And a head-rest we have made for it, too;
And when you come to our little home
That chair will be ready for you.
Yes, that old willow chair is with us yet—
It's in our family still;
And the aged man who rests in it
Is dear old Uncle Will.

THE SECOND PRIMARY

Nearly all the candidates this paper supported for the primary nomination, both in the county and in the state, were successful and came out of the race with flying colors, still we are not in love with the system and we do not believe that it has come to stay.
The primary is too intensive, too expensive, there are too many criminalizations and recriminations connected with it, and it leaves too many malignant scars to rankle in the breasts of those engaged in the same which even reaches out to and includes the voters, and this ought not to be.
Those most wedded to the system were the ones loudest in charging that it was being controlled by corrupting influences, so it will not be long, perhaps, before those now loudest in its praise will be quite willing to return to the convention system, which if not perfect is not so costly a luxury as the primary.
As it is an ill wind that blows no one any good, the primary is a most helpful aid to the newspapers, and if the system is not abolished it is destined to become more and more so, for it is now generally conceded that the masses can be more easily and generally reached through the newspapers than in any other way, and more cheaply also. If the system is adhered to most of the candidates will use the newspapers almost exclusively, so in advocating its abolishment no sinister nor sordid motives can be charged up against us.
The primary means a rich money crop for the newspapers.
If you have any goods to buy, get them at Fishel's now, while the reduced prices are in effect.

OCALA'S BIG FOURTH

General Gilchrist Invited to be Chief Orator of the Day—Thousands Will Greet Florida's Next Governor

Ocala, Fla., June 18, 1908.
Hon. Albert W. Gilchrist, Jacksonville, Fla.:

Dear Sir—Ocala joins her sister cities in extending to you her heartiest congratulations over your recent nomination to the highest office within the gift of your fellow citizens. She hopes that your administration of the affairs of state will be as brilliant as your recent nomination was flattering and decisive.
Remembering how you graced her "coming out" convention, Ocala now extends to you an invitation to her celebration of Independence Day on July 4th, and asks you to be her chief orator.
Ocala expects to be arrayed in her best "bib and tucker" and confidently predicts that thousands will be present to greet you on said occasion.
Very respectfully,
FRANK HARRIS,
Chm. Invitation Com.

TO THE HON. JOSEPH BELL, COUNTY JUDGE

My attention has been called to a private letter of mine, written by me to a friend whose name you omit to publish, but which you published as paid matter in the issue of the Weekly Star, of date June 12th, 1908, under the title, "Who Enticed H. W. Long to Slaughter?" and after quoting the letter, you add, "Why?"
I will say in the first place that the Hon. H. W. Long and I have been friends for many years, extending far beyond the date of the birth of the Honorable County Judge. During the last forty years some things of importance have transpired besides the birth of the Honorable County Judge. All of us have not forgotten that there was a time when it meant great personal sacrifice and perhaps even personal danger to espouse the cause of Democracy against Negro and Republican opposition backed by Federal pressure. The old political warriors were really such, and to compare them with the younger members of the party, without casting any reflections on young Democrats, is, I say, to compare the labors of the polemic with the campaigns and the privations and the perils of the hero of many battles.
The Honorable County Judge asks "Why?" which is the only word he adds to my letter. I ask him by what authority he calls me to book for a letter written in behalf of a friend, and a worthy and an honorable friend, who happened to aspire for office, which office happened (by chance) to be filled by the Honorable Joseph Bell. There is no word in that letter that reflects upon the Honorable County Judge, and the Honorable very far forgets himself and discredits his high office by this display of temper. Shall a Judge carry into his office personal resentment against me (who has not done or said anything to reflect on him) merely because I espoused in the Primary the cause of another? The temper of the Honorable Judge is put on edge by this, and we find that the judicial temper is still at feather edge twenty-four days after the Primary, as then it is to be published in my letter. Such a temper ill comports with judicial office, and I will say to the Honorable Judge that his temper is likely to serve him more falsely than either Mr. Long or the writer.
The Honorable Judge heads his letter, "Who Enticed H. W. Long to Slaughter?" and then copies my letter with my signature. The inference is that I not only was a personal enemy of the Honorable Judge, but that I led out Mr. Long as a sheep to the shambles, as a victim to be ground under the wheels of this modern judicial juggernaut.
The Honorable Judge has been pronounced worthy by the votes of his fellows, but I charge him to cast from him that temper, and reflect that there are infirmities that fasten themselves upon even the brightest young minds and mar them in public service more than all that train of infirmities which is the common lot of old age.
With such an opponent and such a vote, the Hon. Judge might well (in 24 days) have forgotten any small scars of the Primary, and turned his mind to those good and useful purposes of which he is capable.
S. R. PYLES.

Mr. Boggs and Mr. Bigham began to turn the tide in favor of Messrs. Gilchrist and Fletcher, and having got the tide fairly started, Editor L'Engle added to its momentum. Until they got aboard the outlook was anything but cheering. Things had an ominous look.
Something's going to happen at Fishel's. Prices reduced on all goods.
We do not believe that the local primary left any permanent scars in this county. The victorious candidates take their victory with becoming modesty, grace and dignity, and the defeated ones are good natured, and threaten no scalps in the future.

THE GLOBE'S BIG SALE

Mr. B. Goldman of the Globe is an experienced merchant, a merchant who has grown up in a city, and was early taught the value of "publicity," which is now engrossing so much of the attention of the statesmen of our country.

President Roosevelt thinks that "publicity" is a "cure-all" for most of the evils with which our country is afflicted, and Mr. Bryan shares the opinion and makes them his own. "Publicity," "publicity," "publicity!" is everywhere the cry.

Mr. Goldman makes the newspapers serve the purpose of "the candle set on a hill," as described in the scriptures, to tell of the marvelous things that will have their birth tomorrow in his establishment.

Glance at our advertising columns and you will be convinced that there "is something doing" at the Globe.

A big sale—Mr. Goldman hopes the biggest in the history of the Globe—will begin tomorrow, June 20th.

It is uniquely called "A Confession Sale." Mr. Goldman "confesses" that he has more goods lying like the idle penny on his shelves than is necessary for the adornment of the shelves or the good of the store. Mr. Goldman does not want to be like the man who buried his talents, so he "confesses" that he needs more money than he has now in bank to meet the payment for these goods, and he "confesses" that he intends to begin a slaughter of prices without delay in order to get the money to pay for the extraordinary stock of goods that are now lying idle on his shelves. He "confesses" that his customers shall have the benefit growing out of the great "cut in prices;" that come "weal or woe," "rain or shine," he will inaugurate tomorrow.

The names of the goods are attractive to those who are connoisseurs of the fabrics of the loom, and the prices are yet more attractive.

Read, ponder, and make doubly sure, visit the store, compare the quality of the goods with other stocks, and the prices with other prices, and you will have no hesitation in making your purchases for all your summer needs at the Globe.

It is up to the buyer if he wants to save money on the things he needs. The goods and the prices, indeed, are so inviting that it will pay any man or woman in need of same to buy and store away for a rainy day. Don't let so extraordinary an opportunity escape you.

THE PREACHER IN POLITICS

Mr. Upshaw, the Georgia prohibition emissary, who came to Tampa ostensibly to deliver temperance lectures, but whose real purpose was soon disclosed to be political, is disputed, in his charge against General Gilchrist, by three reputable citizens of Plant City, who make affidavit that no such thing as that related by Upshaw occurred. We fear that Upshaw belongs to the Boggs-Bigham class of misguided preacher-politicians, who are not sufficiently versed in politics to get their facts straight before discharging at the mouth.—Tampa Evening News.
